Ricky Gervais has issued his first apology after condemning the 'disgusting' showbiz foibles of Johnny Depp. The comedian and actor's friend claims the actor has "run amok" in recent months and has been spending his time doing heroin and drinking himself into a stupor. Speaking in an interview with The Sun, the former actor added: "He makes a fortune and he goes on a tour and he hasn't been sober for weeks. He is not a nice drunk. He is disgusting." Responding to the criticism of his recent on-stage antics, Gervais has told The Sun: "I always walk away from Johnny being able to laugh and say 'I'm not that bad'." He added: "I'm not saying he is a complete saint and I'm not saying he is a bad person. I would give him the benefit of the doubt if I could see that he was going to a food bank." But the outspoken comic admitted he was guilty of his own slip-ups when he made personal jibes at Queen Elizabeth at a Q&A session in January. He explained: "I made a statement about Her Majesty that was more than a statement, it was a joke. I had no right to make it and I did, I was fired." Gervais also confessed
