Ways You Can Save Knowing how to save your images means knowing when to save them, how to save them, and how to save them. Saving is so common that it's often taken for granted as a means of preserving your image. In this chapter, you will learn how to save your images for future use, a future in which you might have to redo a certain process, or you might need to create and share a still image in an online format. Note: I suggest that you use the term _save_ to indicate that the process is always a store-and-recycle process rather than a recycle-only process, such as "recycle cans" or "recycle containers."

Q: PHP - Parse data from a string and insert into SQL I have been searching the internet for a while trying to figure out what i'm doing wrong. I'm attempting to fetch data from an external script and insert them into a local mysql database. The script returns data in a very strange format, but at least it does something. Here is the script: function dbQuery($q, $type = '', $return_info = FALSE) { include_once 'db/db.php'; global $db; $sql = 'SELECT id FROM db.labels'; $id = $db->select_one($sql); $sql = 'INSERT INTO db.labels SET...'; $id = $db->insert_one($sql); if ($return_info == TRUE) { print $id; } } If i put var_dump($id); at the end of the script, i get the following: string(4) "2" How would i take that string and properly insert it into the SQL query? A: You could try outputting the $id as JSON, like this: if ($return_info == TRUE) { print json_encode($id); } The resulting JSON output will look something like this: { "id":2 } Then, when you're writing the data to the database, you can use a JSON function to convert it to a string like this: $sql = 'INSERT INTO db.labels SET...'; $id = $db->insert_one($sql, json_decode($id)); Extending the Opportunity on Education The Opportunities Scholarship Program (OSP) provides educational support services to students including free tutoring, college financial counseling, career advising, school-based mental health services, and on-campus transition support. This financial aid program, originally named the Financial Assistance Program (FAP), has helped many students succeed and overcome challenges, earn degrees, and enter the workforce. The 2014 OSP budget request is $6,880,000, a $1 million increase over the current year.My apologies in advance;
