The table that shows orders has several columns: customer_ID order_date order_ID order_value order_product The product column is unique, and has a list of products associated with the order. I'm trying to figure out the best way to get the sales report based on a list of customer numbers. All I care about is whether the customer had an order or not, and if they did, what products they ordered. I have a query that gets me the customer numbers (query_order in the database is the customer number). I'm thinking there is a way I can use a subquery in the delete statement or something similar to make it look for orders in the list and delete any columns in the results not matching an order_product. select customer_ID from query_order where order_product in (select product from orders where order_id = x) I'm pretty new to SQL, so any help would be appreciated. Thanks. A: --let's say you have tables in your databasne as customer and orders update Customers set orders.product = NULL from Customer inner join Orders on Orders.customer_ID = Customers.customer_ID inner join Orders on Orders.order_ID = Customers.order_ID 570a42141b
