While they were near the bay, there was an attack by Amalafonso and his cohorts, and the ship was seized. The general in command of the castle was a friend of Amalafonso, and he had sufficient force to resist the attack of the united forces. Two of the Amalafonso's ships were captured, and the general had one large fort in the heart of the bay blown up. He then threw a number of cannonballs into the exposed throat of the bay, and when the Amalafonso saw this the pirates attacked in small boats until they got to the place where the cannonballs had fallen, and the men with these balls on their heads assailed the fort and blew it up. A third general in the castle of the Amalafonso captured the second ship, and her cargo of wheat was thrown into the sea. The Amalafonso's officers had had enough, and they sailed off in the captured ship, leaving the general with many men in the fort with him. The governor of the port was killed, and the priest was wounded, and together with the general and his men he went inland for good. The next day the general found the people of the village in a state of panic, but he soon put it all to rights again. With all the men who could be got together the general put up a fort, and the Amalafonso had no idea that the fort had been built in the first place. The general had mounted cannon, and the people in the village went to work and built a fort near the first fort. Before a year had gone by, there were several more forts built along the bay, and the people could safely go out of the harbor on their boats. Many men died in these forts, and many of the Amalafonso's men died too, but at last the Amalafonso could see no chance for the success of his plan of conquest. Torchlight 2 Prismatic Boltl The same year, the country about the bay of Marivel was raided by warriors from the coast, and then invaded with force, but the marauders were driven back by a garrison in the town of the Amalafonso. The next year the Amalafonso sent a great force, he having heard that a gold mine had been found in this region. To oppose him, the people of Marivel sent a force of foot soldiers, mounted archers, and a few horsemen from the fort, and they
