If the application is able to perform all tests it will return green square with a percentage sign underneath. If one or more test fails it will return a pink square with a list of tests where the problem appeared. The text within the pink square corresponds to the text seen above. The application is able to show a tick in the left top corner if no errors were found. A green tick will appear if no errors are found for all or all but one of the tests. A red tick will appear if one or more tests failed. The application will work without any errors as long as the following requirements are met: Active development version of the VST-Plugin Unit Test Active development version of DUnit The tests are compiled with a MinGW compiler, running in VS2008/2008 Express The unit test is built before the VST plugin is tested (see manual for details) Configure the VST plugin in order to get the correct information from the target application in order to pass a test. Program Settings: Test Types - For any test a test type is defined. The test types are a combinations of Verifiers, Properties and Statistics. The possibilities are listed in the following table. Notice that for each test type a specific way of setting up parameters has to be performed in order to get reliable results.
