The Miami Heat's Mario Chalmers has had a tough time in the NBA Playoffs so far. The veteran guard has averaged only 12.6 points per game and has struggled to be the best player on the floor. While he is the team's second best free throw shooter and is shooting 70% from the free throw line, playing for the 2012 NBA Championship with the Heat, he is sure to have a big impact against Team USA's center Derrick Favors in tonight's semifinal matchup at Bankers Life Fieldhouse.
