The Metro Centre has been the source of controversy over the past few years, with the centre being taken over by the Halifax Regional Municipality after it failed to pay taxes to HRM for a number of years. But the municipality gave back the Metro Centre to the private corporation, which has been renamed the Halifax Metro Centre Corporation since 2017, with the promise to expand the centre, build new rental apartment buildings, and maintain the property. The Metro Centre Development Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the Metro Centre, is now creating the student housing project. The landlord of the Metro Centre property, Clay Marais, told council that they have enough land to
