Thank you for subscribing We have more newsletters Show me See our privacy notice Invalid Email Manchester United will scour Europe to sign Manchester City's talented Portuguese defender Eliaquim Mangala. United boss Louis van Gaal has been interested in the defensive midfielder for a while but the prospect of acquiring Mangala has grown stronger after the centre-half's performances for City in the FA Cup. United are aware that City will not have the problem of selling Mangala at the end of the season but will ensure that they sign the France international ahead of his potential £50m move to City's neighbours Manchester City. Mangala is currently sidelined with a hamstring injury but is expected to be fit for City's FA Cup quarter-final at Stoke tomorrow. United will even start considering Mangala for their squad. Vincent Kompany has been used as a central defender in City's last two Premier League games and he and Mangala could one day be deployed together at the heart of City's defence. Role of pacing in the pathophysiology of complete atrioventricular block. Six cases of complete atrioventricular block (CAVB) following orthotopic heart transplantation are presented, together with a review of the literature. The cases are compared with 20 cases of high cardiac output CAVB in native heart failure patients. It is postulated that pacing with a too fast rate following acute CAVB increases the diastolic blood pressure, stimulates the adrenal medulla, and may thereby be causally related to ischemic myocardial necrosis. Q: Scala How to throw/raise an exception but not halt execution? I have a method that I would like to execute without halting the program. Normally, if it fails it will halt, but I want it to continue without halting. I thought something like this would work: def prod: (a: Int, b: Int) = { throw new Exception("Fail") return null } But it doesn't. What is the proper way to do this? A: Throw an exception but don't handle it is tricky with scala. For me the best way is to block until I know it's going to fail: try { prod } catch { case _

What's New in the?

Some questions to ask when choosing a new bathroom I'm remodeling our unfinished bathroom which I'm DIY'ing. I'm certain it will be done by the time we move into our new home but I'm just playing it safe! I'm curious to know what questions you had when choosing your bathroom. Are there are things that you didn't know you should have asked? _____ Tried it, it worked, now I'm hungry. Try it again! Last edited by Alpaca; 12-01-2009 at 08:12 AM. Reason: I said "passion" when i meant "pastiche"...Q: How to get all the ids where a condition does not hold I've got this piece of SQL that works the way I want it to, but seems rather inefficient: SELECT ID FROM table WHERE MAX(date) = '2008-10-01' ID is the primary key, and the goal is to get the ids that do not have a max date of 2011-01-01. A similar question has been asked in the past here, but the answer is not efficient for a larger amount of ids. How would I write a query that returns all the ids that meet a condition but do not have a max date of 2011-01-01? A: Replace the max() with min() to get the minimum id SELECT t1.id FROM table t1 JOIN (SELECT id FROM table WHERE MAX(date) Monday, October 15, 2015 Ten years ago, while I was an Economics student at the University of Bologna, we were offered an interesting voluntary test. The objective of the test was to select possible candidates for the next class. The test consisted in taking a "test" that was represented by a random sequence of twenty two numbers, and responding to the numbers in increasing order. The initial set of numbers was generated by an algorithm, and the nature
