History Autodesk AutoCAD was initially released in November 1989 and became the first product that was not initially released on a DOS. It was originally referred to as DesignCenter and was written in Borland Delphi. It was the first 3D modeling and drafting software for Windows to be available at the time. The first version, 2.0, was released in 1992. In December 1995, Autodesk AutoCAD 2.5 was released as a part of AutoCAD 1992 Product Release. In 1999, Autodesk released AutoCAD 2002, which provided support for object-oriented drawing, a Windows-based ribbon bar, direct3D graphic acceleration and technology for rapid application development (RAD). It was also the first version to support 2D CAD files (.dwg,.dxf,.dwt,.dwf) as well as 3D files (.stl,.3dsm,.3dm,.max,.cad,.asm,.dgn,.dwg,.dxf,.dwt,.dwf). It also introduced the concept of layers to drawings. The third version of AutoCAD, AutoCAD 2004 was released in September 2004. It introduced the concept of New Feature Packages (NFPs). It introduced several concepts in Raster Graphics including Transformations, Extensibility, 3D Features, and 3D Scene Mapping. It also introduced the concept of parameterized objects and was the first version to support animation. It introduced the concept of layer sets, a new feature which introduced a hierarchy of layers in drawings. This was replaced by layers in the next version. AutoCAD R2014 was released in June 2014. It introduced Dynamic Link Libraries (DLLs) and.NET interfaces. It introduced the concept of Dynamic Selection (shape based selection) and had major improvements to the feature of layering. It also introduced the concept of Multimaster products. It introduced the concept of network access to AutoCAD drawings on the cloud. AutoCAD R2015 was released in August 2015. It introduced the concept of cloud rendering, as well as changes in the Ribbon interface. It introduced the concept of hardware acceleration, allowing for graphics updates and screen redraws during edits to be faster and more fluid than they were before. In January 2016, AutoCAD 2016, the next major release of AutoCAD, was ca3bfb1094

Q: Docker Registry pushing to another registry with different tag I have 2 Docker Registry. I'm using a pipeline which will push a new image to 1st registry and another pipeline will pull the same image and will push to 2nd registry with a different tag name For example, I'm using a jenkins pipeline to push the image from 1st registry pipeline { agent any stages { stage('Build') { steps { // building a new image build 'image-version' //... } } stage('Registry') { steps { // Storing the result to the registry. registry.push('1st registry', 'image-version') } } } } This will push the new image on the first registry with 1st tag and image-version. But, my 2nd registry is in another DockerHub account and it's having a tag name as my-registry/1.2.3. So, I'm using the following pipeline to pull the image and push to the 2nd registry. pipeline { agent any stages { stage('Build') { steps { // building a new image
