He who gazes upon the beauty of the world, and understands his loneliness, is frightened. He who is ashamed to face the world alone, never prospers. Elden Ring is a fantasy action RPG for the PlayStation 4 developed by a worldwide team of creators based on the original visual novel by the same title. The story of Tarnished takes place in the Lands Between, the place between the mortal world and the world of Elden, where a mysterious force commands by innate power. As you play, the gripping story unfolds as you make choices to become the hero who brings hope and peace to the Lands Between. Don't get me wrong, I'm not talking about "Gangnam Style" famous Patreons, I'm talking about regular folks just like me, trying to make a living doing what they love. An article was written on the Opinio Juris website that highlights the top 10 bloggers in the world. According to the article, the top 10 makes up 5% of the entire Blogosphere. However, that 5% of the Blogosphere are credited as "the best" within the world. As a blogger, it can be hard to keep up with people who are in the top 5 of the world. While I don't profess to know the writing well of the top 10 on this list, I know some of the names I am following. So, who is on the list and what do they do? I'm glad you asked.... While the top 5 bloggers might have a few more tens of thousands of followers, I still consider each of the bloggers on this list my personal best friends. Here is a list of the blogs I follow or have followed. Have I missed someone? I'd love to add them in my list of friends! Some of these bloggers are known to almost everyone, while others are known to only a few. I chose to share the love! 3 comments: Wow what a list and what a nice list of friends to have! I do enjoy reading a post about a blogger's best friends.

In contrast to the US and Japan, which prohibit crypto trading and issuance altogether, China has been one of the biggest supporters of crypto startups, which have helped the world's most populous country leap into the blockchain space. Why China? It is no secret that China has captured a large market share in the blockchain space and its decentralized economy. In fact, the country is not only investing in blockchain, but is also taking an active approach to ensure its own prosperity. Last April, state media NewsChina reported that China's central bank had signed an agreement with a Shenzhen-based blockchain financial firm to co-create an industry organization to support the development of the blockchain industry. The bank's governor, Zhou Xiaochuan, said in a statement that blockchain technology is "a promising innovation, and China will fully support the development of the industry, and its application in our financial and economic system," Chinese news outlet Tencent noted. As of late, it seems that China is leading the charge for blockchain-based solutions in the public sector. In May, blockchain firm Canaan One signed an agreement with local government to develop a platform called "Blockchain Centralized Trust Service." The platform will be used to track information on land, agriculture, and permits. An official with the city of Chengdu, where Canaan is based, is quoted by Business Insider saying that this project will allow the city to "leverage blockchain's technology and see the connection between trust and economic growth." "Blockchain will have a transformative impact on our social systems and will create a new generation of intelligent and convenient services," said Zhang Yuan, the general manager of Chengdu Municipal IT Center. Recently, the government of the South Korean city of Daejeon joined the same firm, Canaan One, to integrate blockchain solutions bff6bb2d33
