I'm actually in a bit of a pickle, that's the best word for it. Home; Idiocracy 2006 DVDRip English Spanish French Multi Sub 28For indispensable reporting on the coronavirus crisis, the election, and more, subscribe to the Mother Jones Daily newsletter. The Trump administration will be exempt from a congressional panel's subpoena for its financial records after a Washington, DC, federal court on Monday ruled that the White House has the authority to ignore a congressional investigation. The administration confirmed that it will not turn over any of its financial records, including its tax returns, to the House Oversight Committee on Monday. Justice Department attorney Zachary Terwilliger told the court that the committee's demands exceeded its authority and would be a "clear abuse" of its power. "Given the unique and unprecedented nature of the Committee's requests, and in light of the Committee's repeated failure to establish even a colorable claim to legislative jurisdiction, an assertion of authority to investigate under its acknowledged authority to oversee the Executive Branch would be a clear abuse of that power,” Terwilliger said.

The committee, whose subpoena to IRS commissioner Charles Rettig was one of the first major challenges to the new rules, is investigating whether Donald Trump’s campaign was colluding with Russia during the 2016 election. The lawmakers requested a broad range of information on the president’s finances and his businesses. They have been aggressive in their public claims of Trump’s ties to Russia. “These documents are at the center of serious, active, and ongoing investigations of the president and his associates,” committee counsel Douglas Letter told the court in a filing Monday. “As the sole body to which the president owes the duty to faithfully execute the laws, Congress’s need for the requested financial records is as pressing now as it was in May 2017, when the president voluntarily produced his financial records.” Trump ordered Treasury to turn over the records to Congress in May 2017, but the IRS refused. His lawyers argued that Congress had no authority to demand Trump’s tax records and claimed the agency was within its rights to not comply with the subpoena. But Special Counsel Robert Mueller said in February 2018 that the committee has “legitimate legislative interests.” He also said the committee’s demands were “in pursuit of its constitutionally required oversight function.”
