2009 Weekly Review-
August 18, 2009

Monday- Get Fuzzy
Flowers and Fish, Terry Zoellner's new book of words and numbers is really really good. He is using them to tell us his story. When we first picked up the book I was surprised at how much I enjoyed it. I know I picked it up because I would have to use it in school with the kids. They love having a book with numbers and letters in it. I don't think I have seen a picture book on paper with more words in it. The book is about the author going to an aquarium and finding a fish that looks like him and naming it his name. He then takes that fish home and names the other fish

his name.

Unfortunately, he and his father do not get along. They fight and the fish are getting sick and not staying alive. It ends with him deciding he needs to change his father's mind about not being able to name the fish
and he gives him a fish named Terry. I really enjoyed this book and will be buying copies for the children in my life. I wonder if it would make a good one time read. Tuesday- Snugglebug took a dance class last week. They learned how to tap dance and our instructor said she would let us bring in some hot dogs and drink and dance to it. It was a great idea and she was right.

Everyone was so excited when they saw us they would start dancing. It was fun to watch the kids dance on the kitchen floor while the fire and the dog napped on the couch. Wednesday- Nate's school started again and he is doing a great job. He is beginning to settle in and is doing a great job trying to figure out where all of the kids

are and getting back to the
