Q: How to connect an external USB keyboard in Ubuntu 18.04? I want to connect an external USB keyboard, but my laptop doesn't recognize it. In previous versions of Ubuntu I could connect the keyboard and it would show up under the System tab of the keyboard settings, but after upgrading to Ubuntu 18.04 (fresh install) the keyboard doesn't show in either Keyboard or System Settings in the settings app. I can see that my keyboard has an X-USB-Port identifier under /sys/bus/usb/devices, and when I run lsusb it reports that it is connected and identifies the device as a "HUAWEI Mobile USB Receiver" I have set the laptop to boot in "Legacy" mode, so I can see in the BIOS the HUAWEI Mobile USB Receiver device being set as a HID Keyboard. Is there a way to connect my external USB keyboard to Ubuntu 18.04? A: Kubuntu and Ubuntu 18.04 is not compatible with USB keyboards as a HID keyboard. Instead, the tools are now called libinput and udevadt. You can read more about setting up a USB keyboard in the server.
