I have a PHP script that sends out email messages for various reasons such as after an order is placed, after a payment is made, etc. It all works fine, except for when I try to send an email out to all gmail users' domains that are set to "catch all" or "all other addresses". My script keeps trying to send that message to my "personal address". Here's the code that I'm using to send the message. /php mail script/ $to = $customer['email']; $subject = 'Thanks for being patient with me'; $message = 'Hello, Here are some more messages from our site: '. " ". $name. "We just wanted to say thank you for making our new rug. We love it and it got us through a few days of our home being covered in mold. ". " ". 1cdb36666d
