The game includes several "MatchDay Moments" that use the new technology. For example, players can win free kicks in the newly introduced "Advantage Zone" and player gestures like "Scooping" can give the right-winger added control of the ball. HyperMotion Technology features the following features: Distinct techniques are used to control the ball in pitch-sensitive areas. Players can now choose the right technique, depending on the area they need to receive the ball. For example, in midfield, the left-winger uses a whip or volleys the ball with a back heel, while the right-winger uses a pocket shot to fire it through the high-traffic central area. Dynamic positioning extends touch controls to pitch-sensitive areas. Players will feel more in control as they chase down a loose ball, especially the ball in tight spaces. A player can position himself just right to receive a pass from a nearby teammate. In-game voice coaching dynamically coaches a player based on the ball position and the situational forces. A coach will provide pre-game strategy and coaching advice while a player is in motion or making a tackle. Players can instantly listen to the advice in real time. The new, intuitive touch controls with intuitive control of players' motions was used in the Tour de France game demo at E3 2016. The demo gives players a taste of what the game will be like in the future. FIFA is the most popular sports videogame franchise, and now players worldwide have a chance to experience the most complete and authentic version of the game ever in FIFA 22. Building on the hugely popular foundation of FIFA 19, FIFA 22 innovates in every way: from game modes and online features to the stadiums and atmospheres of every country in the world. The improvements to the game are impressive, from the new play style created by EA SPORTS to the all-new licence capture system. All new Simulant cards allow players to morph and shape their on-pitch experience. Simulant cards can be unlocked by playing, and all players can experience this fun new way to play when they download FIFA 22 on September 21. FIFA 22 also introduces new Authentic Player animations that move with an unprecedented level of detail, and an expansive Player Bar creating a new state of play, allowing players the ability to see and control the game, and their opponents, in entirely new ways. Player ratings also offer more personalised opportunities for teams and clubs, and the Coaching Masterclass provides more in-depth experience and coaching training for players and managers. FIFA 22 is the result of the feedback received by millions of players around the world during the development of FIFA 19 and this year's World Cup™. FIFA 22 Advanced Gameplay FIFA 21 introduced a more fluid, nuanced and organic gameplay style. Under the guidance of new head coach Oscar Garcia, and with input from player feedback, FIFA 22 improves this new system, creating new ways to play and interact with the ball. This year, the game also introduces new ways to make skillful and imaginative plays. A new dribbling system allows players to effectively control the ball at any point during the play. Furthermore, players can use the Simulant cards to affect other players, including slowing them down or even bringing on-screen a teammate at any point in the play. The Captain Pass comes with the Captain Card, allowing players to pass the ball to a teammate when they receive the ball during the play. This leads to more fluid and dynamic plays. Improvements to passing, shooting and shooting accuracy are also seen across the board. As you flick the ball in the air, pass the ball, take a shot or pick the ball up, the new ball physics will react in real time, creating better touches and allowing you to feel the game more closely match reality.
