I've searched and I'm not even sure if I'm asking the right question. I'd like to use Castle Windsor (or any other IoC container of your choice) as a stand-alone application to replace a stock IOC container in a 3rd party library that I've never had the chance to look inside. I've opened the 3rd party assembly in reflector.net and the first thing I see are the following classes: Assembly loader { public Load(System.Reflection.Assembly assembly) public Load(System.Reflection.Assembly assembly, params AssemblyLoadContext[] contexts) public Load(System.Reflection.Assembly assembly, params AssemblyLoadContext[] contexts, params BindingFlags[] bindingFlags) public Load(System.Reflection.Assembly assembly, params AssemblyLoadContext[] contexts, params BindingFlags[] bindingFlags, params ResourceLocation[] resourceNames) public Load(System.Reflection.Assembly assembly,

What's New in the Copy USB Data Portable?

Moving to a new house? Or renovating the old one? There is nothing like the house layout or interior that could raise your popularity. So, when renovating your house or planning to move to new house, keep in mind all these important things. Here are some moving tips, tricks, and do's and don'ts to ensure the hassle-free move. Make a list of the things you need to move When you plan a move, it is always better to list things to do before your move so that nothing will be left undone. So, make sure you list down all the things before you actually make a move. Here are the lists of items that should be done before moving - Clear off all the junk in the house Don't be surprised at the fact that junk and clutter has always been an annoying aspect of your house. So, before moving, make sure that you clear out all the junk off the house so you're just left with bare walls. An empty house is much more attractive and also comfortable for the family, especially when you need to do some heavy works. Empty the fridge and freezer If you've packed a lot of food in your freezer, now is the time to clear it off. Try to leave a few weeks before moving, so that you're able to reduce the gas consumption. You can empty and store the food in your freezer until you're done with the move. Think about your furniture Now is the time to make an inventory of your furniture, and consider the location of your furniture. If your furniture needs to be relocated, make sure you hire a reputable moving company. Now, if you're having multiple people moving in or out of the house you need to think about the number of furniture items that you need to accommodate. Create a moving schedule It's important to have a moving schedule in place so you don't have to worry about any sort of delay. So, before moving, create a schedule that allocates moving days based on the weekends and holidays so there is a complete break from work. A complete inventory should be made in the new location Be certain that you have an inventory of your stuff in the new house. So, either keep all the things in the old house in boxes or hire someone that would help you check all your belongings. You should keep in mind the belongings
