The original version of AutoCAD ran only on the Apple II and Apple III computers, and was later released for the TRS-80, Atari, and Commodore 64 machines. Since the first release of AutoCAD, the application has also been ported to the OS/2 and Unix operating systems. The developers of AutoCAD originally derived the software from Inventor, a separate piece of software that was available for the Apple II. Since release of AutoCAD, the application has been significantly upgraded and expanded, adding many new features to the application. The most significant upgrades and expansions occurred from AutoCAD 1987 to AutoCAD 2017. (In fact, AutoCAD 2017 is the first version since AutoCAD 2000.) The AutoCAD software is freely available for download from Autodesk's website. As of 2018, AutoCAD is offered in two major versions, AutoCAD LT (an older version of AutoCAD that costs US$299) and AutoCAD 2017 (US$895.64). AutoCAD LT is offered in several different versions, one of which is AutoCAD LT 2015. There is also AutoCAD LT 2010 (US$249.00). AutoCAD LT 2015 is the latest version of AutoCAD LT. The new version of AutoCAD LT has several new and improved features, including new tools and faster rendering. In addition, the file and data management improvements make AutoCAD LT a better option for schools. The new version of AutoCAD LT also retains the ability to use the legacy files and data from older AutoCAD LT versions. AutoCAD LT 2015 and older versions of AutoCAD LT can be used for beginners and novices. This is a good version for introductory courses in AutoCAD and computer graphics. AutoCAD LT 2016 (US$299.00) AutoCAD LT 2016 is an update to AutoCAD LT 2015, and is available for both Mac and Windows systems. AutoCAD LT 2016 adds many new features and enhancements,

If you have a strong mind, a wonderful knowledge, unlimited energy and a professional approach to everything, you can be a part of Autodesk's success. I have been battling with this for a long time now. The issue is that my ASP.NET MVC 3.0 project is based on the HTTP Live Streaming (HLS) system (I have chosen it because it allows me to re-broadcast live video across all mobile devices, most importantly iPhones). I have tried to follow all the advice and links provided by Apple and I've gotten up to the point where the problem is the following: the server (my computer running Visual Studio and my ASP.NET MVC project) is listening for a connection on port 80. When it receives a connection, it is listening to requests on that same port for 1 second to see if it needs to reply. When the connection is closed by the client, the connection is terminated. This is supposed to trigger the "re-streaming" phase of the connection, but all I'm getting is a video file with the HLS trailer in it that I am supposed to play on my iPhone. However, if I press the play button on my iPhone, the video file is opened properly. The fact that the video file opens properly does not seem to be an issue, because it has been established that H
