The first version of AutoCAD was designed to work on the very early Apple II microcomputer and was released in 1983. The AutoCAD product name came from the abbreviation of Automatic Computer-Aided Drafting, a term coined by MIT graduates Ken Evans and Jim Clark, who founded the first commercial software company, Art Technology Incorporated (ATI), in 1975 and released a first version of the first commercially available computer-aided drafting (CAD) software application. The AutoCAD product name is a backronym. Automatic Computer-Aided Drafting was a generic term for CAD, which Evans and Clark referred to as "methods of drawing on a computer using a program that can read, analyze, and modify a drawing." In a previous version of the software application, the user interface for the drawing commands was often called "the drawing hand," which became the CAD term "the stylus." In another previous version of the software application, the drawing commands were generated using a standardized programming language called "the hand," which became the CAD term "the mouse." The AutoCAD product name was inspired by the term "auto" and was chosen to highlight the many features of the product, such as using a graphics tablet and mouse in the same way a draftsman might use a drafting ruler and pencil. AutoCAD is available for use on a wide variety of platforms, including desktop computers, mobile devices, and web browsers. In addition to a stand-alone desktop version, AutoCAD can also be integrated into a Windows-based operating system, which allows a designer to use AutoCAD as part of a standard Windows workstation. Since 2004, AutoCAD has also been available as an online service. AutoCAD is also licensed as an iPhone and iPad app. AutoCAD is the world's leading software application for desktop and mobile CAD. AutoCAD 2019 AutoCAD 2019 (AutoCAD is also referred to as AutoCAD 2019) is a commercial desktop CAD and drafting software application. It was the first

AutoCAD version for Microsoft Windows since AutoCAD 2000. It is a direct competitor of SolidWorks and other competing CAD and drafting applications. Development of the software application began in 2012, when the Autodesk True Application Environment platform was rebranded as AutoCAD for Windows. The name "AutoCAD" was retained. AutoCAD 2019 is the result of the unification of three prior

improved to align with Microsoft Office and Autodesk's other products, and AutoLISP was rebranded as Visual LISP, the new command/feature set for AutoCAD LT 2012 was dubbed Microsoft Office® AutoLISP for AutoCAD LT 2012, and many add-on programs were rebranded in accordance with the Office suite. In May 2009, Autodesk announced a framework for programming its AutoCAD add-on products in the .NET framework, with the aim of reducing development time, speeding up release cycles, and improving reliability. AutoLISP was one of the first software applications to be rewritten in this framework, with AutoCAD Architecture, AutoCAD Electrical and AutoCAD MEP all being rewritten in .NET. On 24 September 2017 Autodesk announced that the .NET framework will no longer be a part of AutoCAD LT, and that only the Visual LISP language will be supported in the version of AutoCAD LT that is scheduled for release in October 2017. Development tools AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT are developed in a highly iterative process, which involves the drafting of new features or the improvement of existing features. These changes can be made using any of the myriad of third party development tools that support the various programming languages and application frameworks supported by AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT. AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT contain a number of options which can be programmed using these tools to enhance the capabilities of the software and add specialized features. Some of these include: Visual scripting Visual LISP scripting allows the programmer to create stand-alone scripts and load them at runtime into the current drawing or design, in a similar manner to Macromedia Director. Scripting capability is provided in AutoCAD LT 2005, or more recently, in AutoCAD LT 2012. Visual LISP is a proprietary scripting language which is not supported by Microsoft Visual Basic or by Visual LISP for AutoCAD LT. AutoCAD, AutoCAD LT and other products from Autodesk are based on VBA, a standard of Microsoft Office. Autodesk also offers a set of visual scripting tools called Visual Blocks, which can be added to the drawing for use in the model. af5dca3d97

White supremacist leader is charged with murder in killing of 1 woman, 2 men in Texas A Texas man suspected of fatally shooting two people and critically wounding a third in a "premeditated execution," including by a shotgun blast to the head, has been charged with capital murder, police said on Friday. James Dean Holley, 49, the leader of the Republic of the South, a white nationalist group, also is accused of shooting and killing an unnamed woman at a different residence on Thursday night. In a statement, police said Holley also "premeditatedly and without regard for human life" shot and killed 41-year-old Anthony Haynes and 29-year-old William Sanders at a home in Victoria, Texas, on Thursday evening. Authorities said the woman who was killed was not named because she did not have a next of kin, according to CNN. Holley, who wore a "RIP AMERICA" T-shirt to his arraignment in Victoria County Justice Center, is being held without bond and is being represented by a public defender. Victoria police said they responded to a call at about 9:15 p.m. Thursday about shots fired at a residence on Shannon Drive, a small, rural street in the rural town of Victoria. The caller said a man with a shotgun had fired two rounds into a black Cadillac and then ran away, according to a police statement. When officers arrived at the scene, they found a third person, a 29-year-old man, had been shot in the head, said the police statement. The other two people who were shot were Haynes and Sanders, ages 41 and 29, respectively. Holley was not found at the scene. The woman who was killed was transported to a local hospital, where she died. Police said Holley was arrested in nearby Seagoville, Texas, early Friday after an officer saw a vehicle matching the description of the vehicle the suspect was driving. "He then proceeded to obtain the driver's license and discovered the registered owner of the vehicle was in fact Holley," said Victoria police. Police said Holley confessed to shooting Haynes and Sanders, and a gun was found in the car, but they were not sure if it was the weapon used to kill the woman. "It is unknown at this time if the third shooting incident was also a result of a firearm of similar caliber to the one found in Holley
