Select your OS (Mac or Windows) from the drop down menu. In the new window that pops up, select "Device Manager" from the menu shown on the left. Hi, there is a chance that the "MediaTek" driver for "Windows 10 x64 . MediaTek Drivers For Windows 7, Windows 10, Windows 8, and MAC? MediaTek USB VCOM driver is a driver that makes your Windows computer compatible for flashing. Download the working MTK VCom Drivers on your Windows from this page. MediaTek VCOM Driver download working on Windows 10, Windows 7, Windows 8, and MACOS. For controlling your Android phone with any PC, you need to have its best MTK USB drivers. It is stated earlier that the MediaTek is a super popular company which is making some awesome smartphones and tablets. How to Install MTK USB VCOM Drivers on Windows 8. MediaTek Vcom Driver (Windows 7/ Vista/ XP). In the new window that pops up, select "Device Manager" from the menu shown on the left.Image copyright Getty Images Image caption San Francisco was one of four cities at highest risk of being the next victim of a future earthquake The city of Los Angeles has been identified as one of four cities at highest risk of a future earthquake - although it's unclear whether the city is in the path of the so-called "Big One" that's been prophesied for a spot on the California coast. A new study suggests that Los Angeles is the only major city (bigger than a city-state) in a major earthquake fault zone. But there are other urban areas on high alert, and not all of them may be in the path of a strong earthquake. Which city are we at highest risk of a massive earthquake? The study, by the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) and other researchers, suggests that Los Angeles is far more vulnerable to a major quake than any other of the metropolitan area's 500-plus cities. The researchers looked at the state's 55 earthquake faults and determined that the Los Angeles region is the only metropolitan area in which the average magnitude of a future earthquake could be seven and a half or higher. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a wavelength selective optical filter and an optical module. 2. Related Background Art A transmitting optical filter and a transmitting optical module have been developed as a means for incorporating a light emitting element such as a light emitting diode or a semiconductor laser as a light source. Such an optical filter and an optical module are required to be small in size, light in weight, low in cost, and high in precision. Hitherto, a transmitting optical filter has been disclosed, in which a thin film made of inorganic materials such as a silica-based material is formed on a glass substrate made of a silica-based glass by a sputtering method or a CVD method. An example of a conventional method for applying a reflective film, such as a metal film, is to carry out sputtering under a mixed gas atmosphere of Ar/O2 with the use of a sputtering target comprising a substrate made of metal such as aluminum or the like and a metal film formed thereon. Alternatively, the reactive sputtering under a mixed gas atmosphere of Ar/O2 with the use of a sputtering target comprising a substrate such as glass or quartz and a metal film formed thereon is known. In recent years, as wavelength selective optical filters have been used in optical communication field and optical instrument field, development has been underway to reduce costs by using an optical filter fabricated by a sputtering method. However, in the case where a thin film is deposited by the sputtering method, the sputtering target and the substrate made of glass used in the process are often scratched or chipped. In particular, in the case where a fine pattern is formed on the thin film, the thin film may be partially removed due to the damage of the substrate. Thus, 6d1f23a050
