This is my server: Server: public ActionResult show() { return Content(string.Format("{0}",tasks)); } Controller: public ActionResult Index() { return View(); } This is my view: var value = @Model.tasks; And how can I get a value on the client? A: This is how you would get a value from the server var value = HttpContext.Current.Items["Value"] as string; I'm not sure what you would put in the server - I suspect your server code is incorrect. Q: How do I dynamically resize an image based on window size? I'm working on a small html website for personal use. It takes an image and uses it as a button/link, and resizes it based on the screen size. I found an example on site that did the job, but I have to write the whole JavaScript by hand, and it needs to be made a bit more generic for general use. Basically, the idea is that for every screen size, I determine the image dimensions, adjust it to fit, and scale it down for smaller resolutions. Thanks for your help! A: img { /* figure out the aspect ratio and choose dimensions */ min-width: 100px; width: auto; min-height: 100px; height: auto; } Then, to dynamically scale an image: If the aspect ratio is 1:1, then scale the images to width of the screen, then 6d1f23a050
