Many folks who have died do it so peacefully, never knowing they were dying. When they die, they are not told, therefore they do not know. They have no idea why they are leaving us. They will never know their departure. They will never mourn the end of their life in the same way that we mourn the end of our own lives. As the proverb goes, they may not know that they are dying, but they will definitely be dead when they get there. They will be fine. We will not be fine. Some even think we are fine. But we are not fine. We are. you know. sad. If we can understand their grief, what we have is a lifeline. We know how to love. We know how to endure. We can console ourselves that they have gone before us, and they have given us the gift of their experience, and their experience can comfort us. We are not alone.

However, Vader still considered killing Skywalker the lesser of two evils as it would make his plans on the Emperor more successful. He pressed his lightsaber to Luke's neck and said that if it failed, it would mean the destruction of his family and the end of the line of Anakin Skywalker. If it succeeded, it would make Vader feel like a failure and the end of the Sith. Much like the Star Destroyer above, the planetoid contained layers and layers of cracked, ravaged, and destroyed matter. The Falcon's sensors, though, were only able to collect two of the several billion objects nearby. Determined to see what was beyond the outer layer, the Falcon went deeper. The Mustafarian Institute's protocol droid announced him as Vader, and the scientists took him to the lab. There, Doctor Spectro used a piece of Vader's armor to aid him in creating a body for an ancient Sith Lord, which was to be used to conquer the Mustafarian homeworld. However, after receiving the final piece of the armor, Spectro began to experience visions, and the other Mustafarians took him out to the lab for a session with an alien device which seemed to be having some effects upon Spectro. Spectro was then taken to a makeshift holding cell, where he engaged with a cloaked figure, whom he mistakenly thought to be Darth Vader, until he learnt the truth about his origins.
