the website is available for free. features an intuitive interface for the novice website, and you can build it as you would with any other web page. webeditor supports all common browsers including msie, netscape, opera, firefox, and safari, and there is no requirement to require a client-side ftp client. unsurprisingly, webeditor is distributed as an adobe .exe file, rather than an installer, but this makes it a breeze to install. if you are seeking to make your own website, this doesn't need to be difficult. the interface will be perfectly familiar and user-

friendly even to beginners. all you need to do is make sure that you download namowebeditor.exe, extract it and double-click on the executable file. after you double-click on namo webeditor, you will be greeted by a friendly wizard that introduces you to the program and its features. only few clicks are needed to have your first website online. you will then see new features and tools immediately available to you. the interface is easy to understand and you don't need to be a web design professional to be able to make use of it. like all other programs of this type, namo webeditor is simple to use. the default formatting for the web pages is clean and good looking, and uses the standards for web design. it's a bit bloated to include many features, however, and usually it has no need to be this way. right now the product is in beta and is still being refined, but it's set to launch at the end of 2009. while the program has the look and feel of windows xp, it doesn't get in the way; namo webeditor doesn't even use a desktop icon.

simply double-click on the executable file to launch. 5ec8ef588b
