The practice of the new job interview. - A New Interview, A new day, a new job. It has a modern working environment and offers office employees a higher salary. Every new company has its own way of getting to know a potential new employee. More and more companies are using technology to screen potential candidates.

1. Build a strong profile: So many people consider their old work experience as a form of self-assessment. But the world has changed. Today, it is much more important to use a different approach to get to know the other people. The right equipment and qualifications, as well as professional associations and networks help to build a strong profile. Many companies make a video of the first interview with the applicant or the educational video of the applicant during his studies.
2. The interview: A one-on-one interview is still a classic. It is the interviewer and the applicant who will make a joint decision and decide whether or not the person is good for the job. The interviews can be in person or online, in a group or even one-on-one.
3. Search for the right person: These days, the so-called personality tests are used much more often. It is difficult to carry out a proper job interview without the use of such a test. Or it can be a personality test, which evaluates the real character of a person, which should reveal what he will be like in his new environment. If such a test is carried out, it is usually divided into a few parts. It includes a separate test for each skill.
4. Interview or workscreen? The first thing to do is to make sure whether the person is a good fit for the position. The chances that he or she can do the job are assessed, but there is also a check of whether or not the person is suitable for the company. But that is often only the first step in the interview. Sometimes, the interviewers have a list with several candidates with a certain number of candidates. The job candidate who is short of points should be eliminated from the first round. Then the interviewers can now focus on the remaining candidates.
5. The final decision: In the end, the interview and the applicant are together in the final decision. The candidates are usually allowed to take a break. In order to get a better impression of the applicant, the interview can take place a second time, at a later date or even several times. The applicant can then decide whether or not he wants to take
