Purification and characterization of neuronal tubulin beta3 from Rattus norvegicus. Cultured rat cortical neurons contain a tubulin beta3 gene, but no rat tubulin beta3 protein has previously been reported. We show here that cultured neurons contain a neuronal tubulin beta3 (beta3) polypeptide (Mr = 41,000) that can be purified using a novel two-step anion-exchange procedure (Sephadex G-200 Sepharose followed by a phosphocellulose column). Cellular beta3 is in the cytosol of neurons and all neurons examined have the same content of beta3 (9.3 ng/10(6) cells). Radiosequencing and partial amino acid analysis of purified beta3 have determined that it is a unique mammalian tubulin beta3 (Mr = 42,000), which exhibits sequence homology to rat brain tubulin beta3 (84%). The other four tubulin beta genes in the neuronal genome, tubulin beta1 (72.4%), beta2 (64%), beta4 (54.1%), and beta5 (56.5%), are also present in rat neurons. Expression of the three neuronal beta3 genes was studied using a beta3 cDNA probe hybridized in situ to total cellular mRNA, and was found to be coincident with an increase in mRNA content during neuronal differentiation. The three beta3 genes share a common 3'-terminal exon and, in combination, contain the exon sequences, 1, 2, and 3, of brain tubulin beta3. Examination of the neuron-specific deletion of this tubulin beta3 gene indicates that its coding sequence is absent from the genome of all neurons. In contrast to other tubulin genes, only a single tubulin beta3 message was detected in neurons. Twitter says it's shut off accounts of Kremlin-linked troll farm responsible for spreading misinformation and suggesting they had been helped by US intelligence services This article is more than 3 years old This article is more than 3 years old Twitter has told Donald Trump's presidential campaign it is deleting 126 accounts that it says are linked to the Russian government and are involved in spreading political disinformation. The microblogging service said in a blogpost on Monday that the accounts were part of a "massive and complex" campaign of misinformation, and that it was deleting them as part of a counter-disinformation operation. The second attempt led to seizure of the company's online payment processors, according to a statement from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. GoCoin was created last year by Alec R. Cheyne, a former registered investment advisor and member of Canada's stock exchange. The company acts as a payment processor for a range of bitcoin businesses, including Canada's first bitcoin ATM. The company has been accused by members of the local bitcoin community of alleged malware activity, which GoCoin has denied. Cheyne has also been accused of propping up a dubious digital currency named Privex, according to the RCMP's website. The website specifically details an attempted blackmail scheme that Cheyne is believed to have been running. The RCMP allege that Cheyne told a third party that he would release private information unless he was paid $250,000 in bitcoin or "Privex," an online currency. The seized bitcoins in the latest operation could be worth up to $6 million, according to the RCMP. f988f36e3a
