Zytonic Screenshot captures the entire desktop or the selected region of the screen. The screenshot result can be saved in PNG, JPG or BMP format. The screenshot can be uploaded to your own image host or FTP server. You can share your screenshot using Twitter, Facebook, G+, Tumblr, Digg, Delicious, StumbleUpon and many other services. The sharing process is very easy and also quite quick. The app is included in many third-party download managers and can be used for file sync. Options: You can use the zFTPS API (FTP uploader) which allows you to create FTP upload repositories for your screenshots. The API also allows you to create FTP repositories for your screenshots that you can then share on the web using the same methods you already use for file sharing. You can choose to only export your selection to the clipboard or let it capture the entire desktop. You can also setup the time to wait until the export is complete. There are also optional options to control the color scheme and language.
