IDM 6.23 build 2 Patch [32bit + 64bit Patch].Research on business process automation (BPA) has evolved through two phases. The first phase, called incremental and system-oriented, focused on process automation of particular business functions and the second phase, called radical and application-oriented, on the automation of the business process itself. BPA at the system-oriented level is just beginning to take hold in terms of implementation. The primary concern with BPA at the system-oriented level is the lack of standards and an associated process and methodology for implementation. This lack is a major barrier to achieving widespread business process integration. Hence, it is incumbent upon BPA practitioners and researchers to address this area of BPA. #ifndef BOOST_MPL_NEGATE_HPP_INCLUDED #define BOOST_MPL_NEGATE_HPP_INCLUDED // Copyright Aleksey Gurtovoy 2000-2004 // // Distributed under the Boost Software License, Version 1.0. // (See accompanying file LICENSE_1_0.txt or copy at // // See for documentation. // $Id$ // $Date$ // $
